Frances Shirley Long, 82, passed away on Wednesday, January 18, 2023, at The Arbors Nursing and Rehabilitation Center. Per her request, there will be no services.

Frances was born on Saturday, February 10, 1940, at Ridgely, Tennessee, to David Van and Maudie Irene (Eades) Carroll. She was a waitress and a cook. Later in life, she went on to become a licensed barber. She only barbered for family and friends. In her spare time you might find her making jewelry, painting, or coloring. Time with family was important, but she would rather be dancing than eating when she was hungry. Often times you'd hear her singing Blue Bayou.

Frances was preceded in death by her parents, husbands; Thomas Lee Comeau and Donald Ray Long, son; Thomas Lee Comeau Jr., great-grandson; Stephen Thomas Williams III, sister; Clara Pearl Jackson, and son-in-law; Kerry Stilley.

Those left to cherish her memory are her children; Charles Allen Comeau and wife Tonya, Arthur Lee Comeau, Charlotte Irene Comeau Gonzales and husband Gilbert, Sharon Lea Stilley, and Stephanie Renee Long, 13 grandchildren; and numerous great-grandchildren.

“ There are so many memories I have of momma. She was truly one of a kind. There were about a million things she told me as a kid that stick with me still today. Like Don't leave this house without your hair done and your make up on you never know who you might meet. I am sure the first she did when she got to heaven is go find grandma and grandpa and had coffee. She will be missed. Love you momma.

“ I will never forget when I was 16 years old my mother give me probably the most important piece of advice a mother could ever give her daughter her child I was 16 years old me and Mama were arguing and I remember asking her why are you so stubborn and in the midst of the argument this is what mama told me sometimes in life what you call stubborn is what you have to do you have to stand your ground in life you're going to make decisions sometimes it'll be the right decision sometimes it'll be the wrong decision you're going to make mistakes in life but the important thing is to realize when you made a mistake and to learn from it if that means being stubborn then be stubborn but just remember nobody's perfect we all make mistakes but that's how you learn in life you see your mistakes you learn from it and hopefully you move on so that's one of my bondage memories of Mama and you know as I've grown in life I realized her words are right it's amazing how when we're kids we think our parents are dumb and all of that but as we get older we realize just how smart they were and I don't think Mama could have give me any advice or pearls of wisdom that was more accurate than that one I love you Mama I miss you but I know you're in a better place

“ Grandma was always a firecracker, and no stranger to a freudian slip. When the swine flu happened many years she called me to let me know that she had just gotten over the “hog flu”. She had pins put in her neck many years ago, and they had worked out a bit and needed adjusted. I'll never forget her telling me straight faced she “had screws loose”. Life just isn't going to be the same without her particular brand of one liners.

“ Aunt Fran has always been my favorite aunt, she was strong. It's like she could handle anything that was thrown at her. She was my idol. She was such a rock when Mom passed She held us together. Aunt Fran gave me my first paying job cleaning her house. It was just twice a week but she made me feel grown up. She also taught me how to cook. She gave me what I call old fashioned tips. She was one hell of a strong woman. You will be missed. You will always be loved rest in peace out angel.

“ A house we lived in when I was a little girl had real hard wood floors. Mom use to wax the entire house by hand on her hands and knees. She used paste wax and kitchen towels. Once the wax was on the floor and dried she would have me sit on a towel and she would drag me all over the floor to buff it and make it shine. The floors were beautiful. They shined so pretty. She was very particular with our house. Starched and ironed everything. I'm going to mid my Mother so much. Rest in peace Momma.
