Kenny was born in Jacksonville, Texas on November 14, 1944 to Jewel Marsh and Dorothy Black McClure.

Kenny was the son of a preacher and a teacher. He moved frequently in his childhood making friends wherever he went. He was known for his friendly nature. From the time he was a child he had a horse, this love of horses continued for his entire life. He gently trained horses and shared his love of horses with his family and anyone he met.

He was married to the love of his life Barbara, and together raised a beautiful family. Kenny was a devoted husband, and spent every waking moment with Barbara. The legacy of love he leaves behind will be felt by his children and their children and their children's children. One example of this love, Kenny would leave poems on the dining room table for his wife Barbara. The poems always started with "roses are red, violets are blue". The casket spray reflects the poems with the use of roses and violets. As a father, Kenny spent countless hours coaching, playing, coloring and spending time outdoors with his children. Kenny and Barbara loved taking the grandchildren to festivals, markets, parades, and other events.

“ My mom and I have discussed many times over the years about how precious of a man Mr. Kenny was. He was just the kindest, most gentle soul. I will never forget how kind he was to me as a young girl who loved horses. He let me breed my mare to one of his beautiful studs...for free of course. I remember walking into his stalls and it was magical to me at that age. His horses seemed like they were 20 hands tall and a mile wide. I can picture it vividly still today and that was probably 35 years ago. Memories like that and men like Mr. Kenny are hard to come by. He will be missed dearly. Love - Holly Holcomb Lovell
