“ I first met Aunt Thelma and all the cousins at our wedding. It was very hot, but we didn't seem to feel the heat until the music stopped. I hadn't really had time to meet the family prior to the wedding, so at the reception was looking forward to meeting them. After our first dance, we went around and I met Aunt Thelma who sitting with her daughter Judy. Aunt Thelma took my hand gently and whispered "you are a beautiful bride and welcome to the family". I almost fell over. She was so kind to me. Even through all the tragedy in the past few years, she tried to stay steadfast and fight her way through, but her frail body just wouldn't let her any more. I will never forget what she said to me and how she made me feel that day, the bacon treats that she and Judy would bring to the family reunions, but most of all her smile and the pure joy on her face when she was sitting with Uncle Rex and my father-in-law Dewey three siblings together just talking, laughing and enjoying each other and the stories. She will be missed very much.

We extend our love, prayers and hugs. We wish we could be there, but you are all in our hearts. Sheila Whitaker and family.
