“ Wayne was my uncle, or more specifically, my Grandpa's brother. He and his wife Pat helped my Mom raise me and my sister, after our fathers both abandoned us. I never got to know my real Dad very well, so Wayne was the closest I ever had to a reliable male role model. He and I didn't always agree on everything, but I loved him very much, and one of my regrets is that I wasn't able to be there for him in the last years of his life. I pray that he's at peace with God now, enjoying the love of his heavenly Father and a reunion with his wife, who passed in 2003.
